SYNDICATE BALL AS CONDUCTED BY FREEDWAN, SUDEN AND BRUSH.

New York Club Receives Players From Stockholders Who Own Rival Teams and Want Big Receipts at the Polo Grounds

Pittsburg Refuses to Surrender O' Brien. Before the National League circuit was reduced to eight clubs the public listened to a continual cry of "Down with syndicate ball!" The reformers who were responsible for this oft-repeated slogan were Freedman of the New York club, Brush of the Cincinnati club and Soden of the Boston club. Led by Freedman, an attack was made on the Brooklyn Baltimore and St. Louis-Cleveland syndicates with the result that these joint man. Brush and Soden made absolutely no move to disintegrate their own syndicate, the New York club. On the contrary these magnates are engaged in a transaction just now that illustrates the exect meaning of "syndicate ball," which last Is cember was pronounced by them an evil that was undermining the very foundations of the national game.

Soden and Brush, both holding considerable stock in the New York club, were the first to deplore the fact that Freedman's indifference was not only hurting the interest here but was also keeping dividends out of their pockets. They openly admitted that a poor ball team at the Polo Grounds injured not only the stockholders of the New York club but also their own clubs in Boston and Cincinnati. Believing that an eight club circuit would partially restore interest and that Preedman would make good his promise to spend a barrel of money" for first-class players when his demands had been acceded to. Soden and Brush finally succeeded in arranging matters so that the situation was up to Freedman. But the "barrel" was not opened and the New York club even refused to sign the eight club reduction agreement which did away with "syndicate ball" as fostered by Brooklyn and Baltimore and St. ouis and Cleveland. Freedman's positive refusal to buy McGraw.

Robinson, McGinnity, Kitson, Sheckard, Dono van. McGann and other cracks temporarily unned Soden and Brush. They knew that the New York team would be weak this year and that, as stockholders, they would receive no dividends. was possible, they thought, that Freedman might ask them to make good expected losses. just as he forced the League to guarantee the rent of Manhattan Field, amounting to $15,000. Frompt action of some kind, therefore, was necessary. Soden had some extra players. He would not part with Tenney, Stahl or Collins because such a move would kill the Boston club, but he saw no harm in giving up Hickman and Frisbie. we substitutes, who are young and ambitious. Soden has never given away a ball player before, but in this case it was a matter of business. He wanted to strengthen the New York team, in which he has an interest, to the extent of $30,000 worth of stock. To ask a bonus for the releases of Hickman and Frisbie would have been poor policy, inasmuch as the money would have been atis. Soden's example was promptly followed by Soden's example was promptly followed by Brush. The Cincinnati magnates first move to hoister up the ew York club was snown when he induced his manager, Buck Ewing, to enter Freedman's em doy. Then Brush pacified Rusie, even going so tar, it is said, as to make up a difference between the salary demanded by the patcher and that offered to him by the New York club. This move was made after Brush had pleaded with Freedman to take Rusie back on the ground that the mitcher's return would increase the ground with Freedman to take Rusie back on the ground that the pitcher's return would increase the gate receipts at the Polo Grounds. Brush's real sacrifice, however, came in the shape of a presentation of Outfielder Selbach and Pitcher Hawley to the Yew York club, for nobody can convince the public that Freedman consented to open his "barrel" when he knew full well that he had but Soden and Brush on the run. But, like Soden, the Cincinnati magnate did not hand over Corcoran, Phillips or Peitz because that would have seriously injured his own club. Selbach and liawley were both in bad odor when last season closed, Brush declared then that neither could play again ish declared then that neither could play again

Brush declared then that neither could play again on the Cincinnati team.

Another stockholder in the New York club, Abell of Brooklyn did not follow in the footsteps of Soden and Brush. He could see no reason why he should give up any of his stars, but he did offer first chance to Freedman to buy any of the Baltimore players and also agreed to put the price at a lower figure than that offered to other clubs. Spalding of Chicago adopted Abell's policy and Hart of that club notified the local magnate that he could buy any of the Windy City's surplus players. But Abell and Hart were ignored. As the matter now stands the New York team has received four new players from stockholders who own rival clubs, but who wish to see baseball boom at the Polo Grounds for financial reasons. The Pittsburg club,

Selbach, the former Cincinnati player, slip-ped quietly into town last night and reported to Manager Ewing with a signed contract.

There is one player the New York club cannot get for nothing. Tom O'Brien of the Pittsburgs is the man. Last year, though under reserve to Pittsburg. O'Brien was "loaned" to Freedman and played through the season. He did so well that Manager Clarke in making up the Pittsburgs for this year concluded to keep O'Brien. Not satisfied with receiving Catcher Bowerman for nothing. Preedman made a formal demand for O'Brien. Dreyfuss referred the matter to Clarke and the latter has just made this final statement. "I will not allow O'Brien to go. The more I see him play ball the better I like him. He can hald his own in either the outfield or infield, minds his own business and is just the man for the Pittsburg club. We can find as much use for him as New York."

off for an increase in salary and says, as usual, if he doesn't get what he wants he will not play ball. "If the Brooklyn club values my services enough to refuse $7.500 from Philadelphia," and Jennings, yesterday, "I think I am justified in asking for an increase over what was paid to me last year. I have been playing ball for ten consecutive years and cannot last much longer My arm is in fine shape now and I know that I can earn what I want. It is merely a cold business proposition with me and the Brooklyn club can accept my terms or not, just as it may see fit. I like to play ball but as I cannot last forever I believe in getting as much money as possible or my services. Neither the Philadelphia nor the Chicago club has tampered with me. I was disappointed last year when Reach and Rogers refused to buy me for I wanted to have a chance to manage the Philadelphias. But now I do not care where I piay ball as long as the salary paid to me is what I ask."

A rumor has been in circulation during the past few days that Robison of St. Louis had decided to turn over McGraw and Robinson to the New York club. Robison sent word here yesterday that there was not a word of truth in the report, that McGraw and Robinson would have to play in St. Louis or quit the business, and also that Freedman couldn't buy them now at any price. McGraw said the other night that if he did not go to St. Louis he would lose $8.500 for this season alone, and that Robinson would forfeit $7.000. He said that it would be impossible to leave his saloon business in Baltimore, but when asked why he could not start a similar enterprise in St. Louis, Mac remarked that he had never thought of such a scheme. It is a safe bet that the two players will wear brown stockings when the time comes.

Augusta, March 27.—Hanlon's star collection of baseball tossers are gradually getting down to the hard work of spring training. The appearance of Keeler and Kelley on the field to day for the first time put a great deal of enthusiasm into the champions. Kelley is a trifle overwight, but Willle hasn't taken on an ounce of soft fiesh. There are now eighteen players here All of the regular team with the exception of Jennings have reported. The pitchers now here are beginning to get the kinks out of, their arms Hanlen marvelled at the exhibition that 'Roaring Bill' Kennedy gave during his twenty minutes in the box this afternoon. He is likely to be the Brooklyn twirler in the opening game at the Polo Grounds. If he is Freedman's outfit will be up against a tough thing.

Polo Grounds, March 27.—The snow storm last night compelled Freedman to open three barries here to-day instead of one. They were filled with sawdust. The three Italians are still on deck, though considerably exhausted. They are prepared to greet the New York champions when they report to-morrow.

Manager Loftus of the Chicago club announces that his infield will be made up of Everitt, first base. Childs, second base; Clingman, shortstop and McCormick, third base. Young Bradley, who made such a good showing at third base last season, will be used as a substitute while the other third baseman, Wolverton, will be placed on the market. Loftus says the Chicagos will be fast in fielding, strong in pitching and above the average in batting, but other judges says his team will be weaker with the stick than heretofore.

Pitchers Seymour and Doheny and Catcher Bowerman of the New Yorks arrived in town yesterday and took a trip to the Polo Grounds with Manager Ewing. The other players have been ordered to be on hand to-day.

A PENNSYLVANIA JUSTICE'S DECISION

IN THE CASE OF INJURED CYCLIST. He Reverses the Finding of the Lower Court and Orders a New Trial for the Rider -The Route for a Path From New York to Buffalo-New Bulletin of the League. Justice Mestrezat of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania handed down a decision on Monday that is of particular interest to cyclists because the circumstances of the case are of everyof Common Pleas, which had instructed a jury to find a verdict in favor of a company whose driver was defendant in a suit for bodily damage, brought by Benjamin Foote, a young cyclist, Justice Mestrezat reversed the finding and ordered a new trial. Foote was proceeding north and keeping on the right hand side of the street when the wagon turned a corner and came toward the boy upon the same side, which was to the driver the left hand side. In trying to avoid a collision Foote was knocked down and run over. In rendering his decision the Judge said: "The boy received the same right and was by a horse. In passing north along the east side of Seventeenth street the boy was where he had a right to be, and where, if travelling on the street in that direction the law of the road, as well as the city ordinance, required him to be.

"When no one was approaching with a desire to pass him with a vehicle, the driver received the right to use any part of the street not occupied by another, yet when he turned abruptly on Seventeenth street in the manner shown by the testimony, he was taking the chance of a collision with other traceilers going north on that street, whose rights at that time were superior to his.

"Whether the boy could have seen the wagon on the street in time to prevent the collision was not for the Court to determine under the circumstances shown by the testimony, hor was it for the Court to say that his effort to free himself from his danger was a negligent act of contributing to his injury." street in that direction the law of the road, as

The particulars concerning the new bulletin for L. A. W. members, which were recently published in Thir. Sun, have been fully confirmed by President Sams's committee which has charge of the matter. The committee has issued a long statement of the terms to be compiled with by the next publisher and printer and has sent it to those desiring to make proposals. It will be an illustrated monthly, the sole title or most prominent part of the title of which will be The League of American Wheelmen Bulletin. Copies of the full set of stipulations may be obtained by addressing. Secretary-Treasurer W. S. Bull of the L. A. W., 132 Nassau street.

With the rubbish of all winter on the roads there is a large crop of punctures soon to be harvested, and this is the time therefore when those riders who make provision for accidents and carry fire repairing outfits should look over the latter. In the majority of the repair kits to be found on the roads the tire tape has dried out so as to be useless and the little cement tube is empty because its contents have evaporated. It is an excellent thing to examine the cament tube frequently, as the contents are apt to be missing when most needed.

A local dealer commenting on the large amount of repair business that is being done this spring said.

"The average small dealer does not care any more a great deal about selling wheels. I had rather not handle them than to make $4 or $5 profit on a machine and have to throw in a lamp, or bell, or cyclometer and then have them coming back for free repairs on the basis of the guarantee. It is just as true as ever it was that the burden of the guarantee falls upon the retailer and not the manufacturer. I had rather let some other fellow sell them than I, and then have them come to me to keep them pumped up, cleaned, oiled and repaired. Then I can charge them every time I put my hand on the wheel, but if you attempt to charge a man for services after he has bought a wheel from you he makes a frightful howl. In spite of the fact that we no longer make a profit of $20 or $30 on a wheel, customers still seem to think that buying one bicycle from you puts you forever in their debt. Ah, me! I wonder if they will ever be sensible.

It is quite certain that the National Cycling Association rules when completed for this year will limit motor tandems to 2's horse-power for regular contests and require a special sanction to be obtained for machines of greater horse-power, with the further stipulation that in all races motor cycles must be of equal horse-power. With this rule the racing men who ride the machines will figure as prominently as before, because their pedalling ability will be as much as ever in a race.

COMPLAINT AGAINST AQUEDUCT.

Horsemen Think That District Attorney

District Attorney John B. Merrill of Queens county yesterday gave out a statement to the effect that there had been lodged with him a serious complaint against the management of the racetrack of the Queens County Jockey there would be held under the strict super-vision of the officers of the law. He said that the managers were charged with conducting the place outside of the limitations of the State racing law, and that the track was invested with poolselling and other forms of gambling. and that such violations have been carried on openly, and that there is reason to believe that preparations are being made for a whole exodus of poolsellers and gamblers from Manhattan and Brooklyn to Aqueduct in order to take advantage of the spring meeting, which opens tan and Brooklyn to Aqueduct in order to take advantage of the spring meeting, which opens on April 0.

The legal bombshell caused more amusement than fright among the turfmen to whom it was shown last night. There was particular hilarity over the reference to poolselling, a form of speculation that has been unknown at local running tracks for several years. An official of the Queens County Jockey Club took the matter seriously, however, and hinted that such a "knock" was expected from "ticker combinations," whose business will naturally be affected by the exodus to Aqueduct. He said the law under which they obtained their racing dates would be observed to the letter, and that an example would be made of any person or persons caught in an attempt to infringe it.

person or persons caught in an attempt to infringe it.

A horseman closely in touch with the State Racing Commission said:

"It is not a county matter at all. The Queens County Jockey Club is responsible to the commission and that body in turn is responsible to the Legislature. If any illegal 'same' is attempted at Aqueduct there will be no need to bother the local District Attorney. It will be a State offence, with Sing Sing as a wind up. Aqueduct has been run heretofore strictly within the rules, and there is no serious reason to anticipate that President Reilly and his associates will stand for anything that is not on the square."

Mr. Whitney's Great Colt Jean Beraud

LOUISVILLE, March 27 .- There seems to be but little doubt that the great Jean Beraud has gone wrong. A rumor to this effect has been persistent for some time, but has been stoutly denied by Trainer Wimmer and the other employees at the Whitney stables. Last Sunday ployees at the Whitney stables. Last Sunday Beraud worked out a slow mile and pulled up very lame. The trouble was then said to be due to poor sheeing. This morning he was out again. After working out a mile in 152 he again pulled no very lame and in worse condition than before. The trouble is in his right foreigg. Trainer Wimmer makes light of the injury and says that a few work-outs will bring him around.

All of the saddle horses are to be judged by a scale of points, with a marked distinction between horses for women and those for men. In the classes, for men's saddle horses conformation, quality, manners and style of going are to count equally in determining the award. When it comes to saddle horses for women manners are placed above all other requirements, counting 50 per cent. In the scale, Quality will count 25 per cent, and comformation and way of going, lumped together, the remaining 25 per ceut. Among the spectacular features of the programme are five jumping classes, an exhibition of polo ponies to be shown with mallet and ball, and a cavalry competition, open to members of any recognized troop of horse, the competition to consist in cutting Tur...' heads and riding at rings, skill in horse and rider a one to be considered by the ludges. Entries for the show will close on April 14.
